Safe Haven offers efficient, easy-to-use, solar-powered boatlifts. Ship Shape TV (SSTV) will air an episode about the lifts this summer.

"I'm concerned about the environment and so are my viewers," said SSTV host John Greviskis. "Carolina Waterworks' Safe Haven Systems are green and solar-powered. A friend of mine was killed by an electric boatlift, so I'm really happy this safer option exists."

A boat can be lifted and lowered by harnessing solar energy, without the need for electricity or remote controls. The patented airlift design lifts the craft completely out of the water in under a minute with just the push of a button. They're virtually unsinkable, offer a straightforward installation and require zero maintenance.

Boat lifts use solar power, no electricity

"These lifts are so easy to use and save so much time," said Greviskis. "Anyone can drive onto a lift, but these are the simplest to launch. My 11-year old daughter and wife can do it by themselves."

Several different Safe Haven models accommodate boats up to 32 feet. They also have a version made for personal watercraft.

A boat improvement series, SSTV teaches viewers how to update and repair their boats. They learn about regular maintenance procedures, ranging from cleaning tips to bilge pump care and docking equipment.

The new, patented Chadd Padd, a multi-purpose spill response solution, is a reusable mat which catches and contains fuel before it becomes a problem.

Providing 10" by 10" of fuel-absorbing power, the waterproof Chadd Padd is anti-static treated and can hold up to 4.5 oz. of petroleum products. Made of the same material marinas are required to have for spill prevention, control and countermeasure (SPCC) requirements, the pad saves owners fees and the hassle of clean-up.

The Chadd Padd can be re-used. With a perforated, partial hole design, it accommodates most filler ports for refueling or adding oil. The pad can also be employed as a drip mat in the bilge before pump-out or when working with hydraulic fluid. It's even disposable, in accordance with applicable regulations.

Suggested retail price is $9.95 for a 6-pack; roll of 36 pads is $34.95. Enter promo code EZFUEL8 at www.chaddpadd.com to save 10 percent. Larger sizes, greater quantities, dispensers and other accessories are also available.
